Junior Full Stack Developer | Quality Control Assistant

Identifying areas of improvement, developing solutions, and implementing those solutions to ensure the improvements are achieved are three skills that I feel represent my strengths. Where some may see problems, I see challenges that can be conquered. With this mindset and my strong work drive, I strive towards consistent and measurable positive changes in all areas of my life.

My day-to-day duties as a Quality Control Assistant involve research, sample taking & scheduling, risk & documentation analysis, and administration. My role also includes managing the archive system that I revamped in 2023.

In December 2023, I began building an Inventory Database Management system for Domretor Oy. This program has allowed me to combine my love for technology, problem solving and quality control. I have also been able to apply my knowledge of coding and databases to programs available in the normal office environment; for example, Microsoft Access and Excel.

The challenge and excitement of Front End, Back End and Full Stack Development are indisputable. Writing clean, readable, executable code with semantic meaning has been as rewarding as seeing the ready website. I truly enjoy knowing that as long as I am developer, I will continuously learn new and exciting technologies and techniques! Website development has given me the opportunity to embrace my creative side and analytical side at the same time. Plus, the skills that I have gained as a Quality Control Assistant have directly impacted my skills as a developer in a positive way. As I transition to full-time web development, I bring along experience with me that helps me to work well in teams, communicate efficiently, document projects thoroughly and receive & apply feedback professionally.
